- ☐ 1. From 20 to 26 January 1953, no troops arrived at, or moved out of, the former concentration camp at Sachsenhausen near Oranienburg. All quarters were lighted at nightfall. This observation was confirmed by the architect of the Eberswalde special construction bureau. No German laborers were employed at the Sachsenhausen camp during the time of observation. All work to be done was performed by Soviet troops. At 9:40 a.m. on 25 January, 4 platoons of 50 soldiers each wearing red-bordered black epaulets and belonging to the tank unit Chuk marched from Sachsenhausen to the Schuetzenhaus. They returned at 12:45 p.m. The Parkin driving school engaged in training daily from 8:30 to 11 a.m. and 3 to 4:30 p.m. in the terrain.

- ☐ 2. From 17 to 20 January, the former concentration camp and Panzerschule in Oranienburg were still occupied by about 3,000 troops. Soldiers were observed wearing red-bordered black epaulets with tank, artillery, motor transport or signal insignia and blue-bordered black epaulets with signal insignia and black-bordered crimson epaulets. The troops were engaged in close-order drill and motor vehicle maintenance duty. Other troops practiced carbine firing with live ammunition on the troop training grounds north of the concentration camp.

1. [REDACTED] Comment. The report indicates no changes in the occupation by units of the 25th Tank Div of the concentration camp, the Panzer Schule, also called SS Kaserne, in Oranienburg. See [REDACTED] It is believed that small detachments of these units started combat firing practice at the Templin troop training grounds after early January 1953. Respective information from Templin has been obtained but not before mid-January. According to the present report the following units of the division in the above mentioned installations were identified: the 162d Tank Regt with Colonel Chuk (fnu) as commanding officer or supply officer; an unidentified
